DON'T TALK BACK.

NEVER talk back! sich things is reprehensible;
A feller only hurts hisself that jaws a man that's hot.
In a quarrel, if you'll only keep your mouth shut and act sensible,
The man that does the talkin' 'll get worsted every shot.

Never talk back to a feller that's abusin' you—
Jest let him carry on an rip and snort and swear;
And when he finds his blamin' and defamin's jes amusin' you
You've got him clean kerflummixed—and you want to hold him there!

Never talk back and wake up the whole community,
And call a man a liar, over law or politics—
You can lift and land him further, and with gracetuller impunity,
With one good jolt of silence than in half a dozen kicks.

Odds and Ends of Gossip.

A VETERAN—He was an active old man, one who had evidently seen many of the vicissitudes of this world and one in whom the spirit of adventure was yet alive, which was revealed by the story he had to tell to a well-known citizen whose charity he had accepted. The old fellow, so he informed his new acquaintance, was making his way back to his home in Ohio. "I have been down to Chickamauga," said he. "What did I go for? Why, I went to join the army, but they wouldn't take me. They said I was too old and couldn't stand the hardships. I think they made a mistake. I am a little old in years, but I venture to say that I can stand as much work as many of the youngsters they have enlisted. I served three years and eight months in the Union army with the Tenth Ohio, and this is not my first visit to Chickamauga. I was there when what is now a great camping ground was a bloody battlefield. I have been to Springfield before, too, by the way. It was during the war. You see, I had a little hand in that little fight up here at Perryville. Those were stirring times, I tell you," said the old veteran, as his eyes sparkled. "These young fellows don't know what war is and I don't believe they will have any such experiences as we had in the sixties, but I would like to go with them just the same. You see, it's this way: I have two boys who are with a regiment at Chickamauga and after they had gone I just couldn't stay at home, so I went down and tried to get in. I can stand as much work as they can, and I went all through the war and came out sound and I don't draw any pension either." The old fellow said that he had traveled nearly all of the way back from Chickamauga on foot, having left what little money he had left, after paying his way there, with his boys, who, he said, needed it worse than he did.

TO THE FRONT—At last the order has come, and the boys of the First and Third Kentucky regiments at Chickamauga who, according to the newspaper correspondents from that place have been spoiling for a chance to fight the Spaniards, will go to the front. The latest is that the First Kentucky, in which are enlisted the Washington county boys, will go immediate to Porto Rico, under command of Gen. Fred Grant. This may be, and no doubt is good news to the boys in camp and who have become restless for more active warfare, but I venture to say that there is more that one mother's heart in Washington county that will sink at the realization of the fact that their boys will soon be exposed to the terrible dangers of the battle-field. The indications, by the way, look very much like all of the volunteers who have enlisted in the army so far will be given an opportunity to do active service, as the war may be prolonged very much beyond the time originally indicated.

HOT WORDS.—The editors of the two Lebanon papers are having a warm time just now exchanging compliments with each. The Enterprise has gone to the trouble af looking up the past career of "Brown & Co" of the Falcon and the account published is not a very enviable record. These personal matters when brought into newspaper controversies seldom do any good. The public reads it with about the same kind of interest that it would view a dog fight and it certainly is not calculated to make any friends or bring in any more subscribers to either paper. As a rule the public is interested no more in the private life of the editor of a country paper than it is in the affairs of any other private citizen.

Thieves in the New Market neighborhood seem to have an especial liking for the flour of Graves and Collins. They effected an entrance to the mill Sunday night for the third time recently and took away with them some 500 pounds of flour.

Quite a procession of gypsies passed through town this week and attracted no little attention with their gaily colored wagons and string of horses. They were arrested below town by Sheriff Cooper on the charge of defrauding the tollgate on the Danville pike and fined $200 and costs.

Quite a painful accident occurred to Mr. Charles Cleaver Wednesday night. In getting in his buggy, which was hitched on Main street, his pistol fell from his pocket and on striking the curbing was discharged. The ball, a 38 calibre, entered the left leg just below the knee and inflicted a painful though not necessarily serious wound. He was takan to the office of Dr. Tom Cleaver, where the bullet was probed for but could not be located. He was afterward removed to his home where at last accounts he was doing well and no very serious trouble is anticipated from the wound.

Mrs. Ben Helm, who lives a few miles from Lebanon, met with a painful accident last Thursday afternoon. She was accompanying her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Clem Spalding, home. All were in a a spring wagon and in the rear of the vehicle was a corn sheller. While crossing a small ravine the corn sheller was over-balanced and tumbled out. Mrs. Helm, who sat near the machine, endeavored to prevent its falling but not having strength to do so was pulled out by it. In the fall the machine struck her on the forehead just above the left eye, cutting a long gash and leaving the eye severely bruised. In a little while she regained consciousness, and restoratives were applied. Dr. McChord was called and he sewed up and dressed the wounds. Mrs. Helm is 62 years of age and notwithstanding the severity of the accident she was able to come to town Wednesday. Her many friends will welcome the news that she is improving.

The hog has an appetite beyond his powers of digestion. The practical feeder, going about with his eyes open need not be told that if hogs have corn by them all the time they will soon become "stalled" and will not eat nearly as much a day as if fed just what they want twice a day. There will be no public sales of leaf tobacco in the Louisville and Cincinnati markets from August 1st to August 15th. The Louisville Leaf Tobacco Exchange has decided upon a vacation during that time. The Cincinnati warehousemen refused to concede a a similar vacation in their market, but nine of the principal buyers representing nearly all the large manufacturers of the United States, have signed an agreement binding themselves not to attend any public sales at any of the Cincinnati warehouses between August 1st and 15th. Hence, although the Cincinnati warehouses have not agreed to it, they can hardly hold sales without the assistance of the buyers and it will be a practical suspension of sales. It is hoped that some such vacation during the summer will eventually be made one of the permanent rules of the trade at both markets.—Farmers Home Journal

Snap Shots With a Graphophone.

The Graphophone is to the ear what the photographic camera is to the eye, and more, for the Graphophone catches instantly and preserves every tint and shade of sound. A most interesting use of a Graphophone is to make records of your friends voices to be preserved for future use. You can catch the story of your jolly friend just as he told it, or the favorite song of some loved one just as she sang it, and have it reproduced perfectly at any time and as often as you please. Besides the Graphophone affords wonderful entertainment in the way of reproducing the music of bands, orchestras, or vocal or instrumental soloists. No investment will return so much in pleasure as the purchase of a Graphophone. It is the perfect talking machine. Devil on a Church Spire.

The Parish church at Chesterfield, England, has a curious spire. Instead of being perpendicular, it is bent and twisted, so that the spire deviates from the perpendicular some six feet to the south and four feet to the west.

Stories and legends relating thereto are numerous and interesting.

One tells that pretty and virtuous women were exceedingly scarce in the town, so scarce that when one day a good and lovely woman stepped within the church to be married, the steeple was astonished and bowed to the bride, and that the bend was made when attempting to regain its original position. The legend is still more unkindly toward the fairer sex, for it continues that never will its upright position be regained until another model woman is married beneath it.

With many legends the Prince of Darkness is connected, and the best of these is as follows:

The devil flying over town, and tired with extra exertion, settled on the spire to rest. The incense which was being burnt in the church at the time was wafted upward, and so tickled the devil's nose that he gave a terrible sneeze, which so shook the temple that it was irretrievably twisted. One of the most intelligent theories put forward regarding the twist in the spire is the clinging pressure of the lead may have caused an irregular subsidence in the timbers, which have also been powerfully warped by the action of the sun beating through the lead on to the greener parts of the woodwork.

Rumors that the spire was unsafe have beeen rife, especially about the year 1817, when experts who examined it pronounced it to be in a very unsafe condition. Public opinion was, however, against its demolition, and the steeple still stands, one of the strangest architectural curiosities in the world.

Don Carlos, the Spanish Pretender.

It was a warm summer's evening. I, a girl of sixteen or seventeen, sat talking with a very fashionable lady at one of the primitive bathing establishments of Viareggio, whilst a loud and rather discordant band played a dreamy Waldteufel waltz—oh, well do I remember it!—and some intrepid dancers, oblivious to the Sahara heat that reigns in that spot even till late at night, timed their steps to the music. Suddenly I saw a tall, commanding figure approaching, followed by a number of distinguished looking men, who remained a little way behind him. He sauntered to where we were sitting and bowed gracefully to my fluttered companion. She stood up at once and while they exchanged a few words I examined that handsome and kingly face and knew instinctively that I had before me a personage indeed. His beard, short and of ebon, black, contrasted with the ivory pallor of his face, while his eyes, as black as night, flashed haughtily from beneath his dark brows. His forehead bore the Olympic serenity of the gods, and indeed one might quake without being a coward before so kingly a man were it not for the smile that suddenly illumined his countenance, softened the eyes almost to tenderness and played over his regular features like a sunbeam on the statue of a god. Remember I was but silly sixteen, very, very susceptible, and it was the first time I saw a prince of the blood royal.

I was brusquely aroused from my ecstatic contemplation by my compliation who, in dulcet tones said: "Mademoiselle de F——, allow me to introduce you to the King of Spain."

That he made but a poor sort of a husband to his first wife, Princess Margherita, was a well-known fact. He led a dissipated life at Venice and the echoes of his follies rang through Europe; and when I saw the saintly duchess leading a life of charity and austerity, and humble in the midst of so much grandeur, I felt my blood boil with indignation toward him; but in his presence one forgot all save that he was a gracious sovereign, who willingly told an amusing anecdonte in which he came out in colors far from glowing.—Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for August.

Spain's "Honor."

There is a terribly tragic side to the present attitude of Spain. It is all very well to say that she deserves to lose her colonies. That only makes her situation the more pitiable. Then, too, are we not all overapt to judge the nations by their rulers? We should not forget the countless throngs of Spanish citizens who can only think of their country's hollow-sounding phrases about the "honor" and "glory" of a resistance a l'outrance with shudders of dread, with pangs of scorn. What to them are an honor and a glory which leave them to starve, which place the possibilities of their human existence below those of beasts? There will come a time (and it is not so immeasureably distant, either) when patriotism and philanthropy will have but a single meaning, and when just as no man can be called philanthropic who does not cherish his immediate country folk, so no man will be held patriotic who does not prize his remotest fellowmen. But meanwhile there is no real patriotism conceivable for any nation save that which partakes of a distinct gratitude. "Our country, right or wrong," is the idlest of shibboleths. It is when we can point to so much secure contentment, so much firm chance of maintenance for ourselves and those we hold dear, so much moral and physical freedom, so much probity and highminded ness on the part of our governing functionaries, that a genuine sense of patriotic devotion begins to bloom, prosper and thrive. I cannot perceive how any Spaniard, sorced from the big hun gry masses into military service, can love his country at all, or can fight for her save with a bondman's half-hearted reluctance What inspiration can the amor patriæ draw from schemes of ambitious dynasties, craft of greedy political time-servers, arrogance of caste? Not only does one marvel that this huge Spanish worm, the People, takes so long in turning. Still more incredible does it seem that the poor worm does not suicidally let itself be trodden upon by other heels than those of its own haughty and cruel chiefs.—Edgar Fawcett in Collier's Weekly.

A Frenchman's View.

Maj. de Grandprey, military attache of the French embassy, has just returned to Washington from the American headquarters at Santiago, where he has been observing for his government the progress of military operations. He paid a glowing tribute to the fighting ability of our soldiers, in which he said:

"I have the most complete admiration for your men. They are a superb body, individually and as an army, and I suppose not throughout the world is there such a splendid lot of fighting men. It is the fighting characteristic of the men which is most apparent. They are aggressive, eager for action, never needing the voice of an officer to push them forward.

"Another marked characteristic is the self-reliance of each man—what we call the character of 'initiative.' It is almost unknown in European armies, where every movement and the move to meet each action of the enemy await the initiative of an officer. But with your men they fight to the front, meeting each emergency as it arises, overcoming obstacles by their own initiative. Such self-reliant fighting men make an exceptionally impetuous army, for every unit contributes to the irresistible onward movement.

"The Spanish troops do not have this same characteristic. They are more passive, more cautious. Besides the impetuosity of such fighting material, it has the effect of inspiring a morale among the troops, making them feel that success is assured and at the same time carrying disorder and depression to the ranks of the enemy."

Maj. de Grandprey says the fighting about Santiago is something entirely different from the warfare of European and other armies of modern times. The dense vegetation and tangle of tropical vines makes it impossible to observe the usual military formations. As a result there is little or no effort to fight in solid formations. Every man is fighting for himself, pushing forwaad through the shrubbery, vines and tall grass. It is impossible to see the enemy. There is no line of battle ahead rgainst which the assault is directed. Only through the reports of pickets, and from the crack of rifles here and there ahead, is it known that a fighting force is there. This makes the shooting irregular, as it is seldom possible to see one of the opposing soldiers and get a distinct aim at him. The main result of this is to bring the two fighting forces close together gradually until they are fighting at close range

Maj. de Grandprey also speaks very highly of the efficiency with which the American troops and supplies were started on their expedition and debarked in Juba.

BEATS A BOOMERANG.

THIS BULLET JUMPS OVER A MAN AND HITS HIM IN THE BACK.

A Person Will Not Be Safe From an Enemy Standing on the Opposite Side of a House If the Claims of a Young English Inventor Are True.

The man who flatters himself that he is safe because he is behind a house when another man is firing off a gun at the other side, had better get rid of that ridiculous notion once and for all.

For a young inventor claims to have discovered a wonderful new way of making bullets; and if the new bullet meets with that popularity which its remarkable abilities appear to warrant, it won't be quite safe to be in a balloon while an effort is being made to fire down a well. In short, the new bullet will, even if it does only half of what is claimed for it, upset all old-fashioned notions of the laws governing the flight of projectiles.

Arthur Chalk of Church Place, High street, Wapping, is the young inventor in question, and he yesterday told a Daily Mail reporter that this new bullet of his would go around corners, suddenly shoot up in the air and descend point first on top of a town or anything, or fly round and round and then jump back and kill off an enemy at the back of the man who fired it.

"I am but eighteen years of age," said Mr. Chalk, modestly, "and I am confident that I have invented a bullet that will revolutionize fighting. What I claim, and am prepared to prove, is that with my bullet I can hit an object that is round a corner or on the other side of a block of houses. There is absolutely no doubt about the accuracy of the aim. Supposing, now, you wanted to hit something that was round the corner of a mountain. When you had found the distance between your gun and the mountain you would fix your bullet to alter its course at a certain moment. Then you'd fire, and the man round the corner would be sorry.

"Or, say you wanted to hit an enemy's ship lying on the other side of one of your own. That would be the easiest thing imaginable. You would just fix your bullet to go straight for a bit, then soar upward for awhile, and then rush down point first on top of the doomed vessel.

"I tell you, my bullet will go any way and do anything you may want it to, and I've written to the war office to say so.

"Up to now the only communication I have received in reply is the usual stereotyped 'acknowledgment; but the patent office people—he did not mention names—have valued the invention at £150,000, and have told me that it is the most marvelous invention of the present age.

"I shall wait for a further communication from the war office, and if I do not hear from them I shall offer my invention to a foreign government. Of course I would rather the new bullet became the property of the English government, but I want to know soon."

Mr. Chalk is a modest and very earnest inventor, and when he mentioned that he had tried one of his bullets in a field, and that the projectile, obedient to his wish, had circled in the air about five times and had then fallen behind him, he did so with the air of a young man who is calmly confident that he has thought out a great thing. But of the method by which he alleges he obtains these unusual results, no hint can be extracted from him. That is the secret he hopes to obtain those £150,000 from.

The Earliest Journal

The oldest newspaper in the world is not, as is generally stated, the thousand-year-old Kin Pan, of Pekin, but the Tsing-Pao, or Pekin News, which was first published more than 500 years before the Norman conquest, and which has been published without intermission for nearly 1,400 years.

The Tsing-Pao has the appearance of a yellow-backed magazine of twenty-four octavo pages, each page consisting of seven columns, and each column consisting of seven "characters." Two editions are published—an edition de luxe for the Court and the upper classes in China, at a cost of 24 cents per month; and an edition, inferior in paper and printing, which costs 16 cents a month.

The Tsing-Pao is the Times of China and chronicles the wealth and movements of the Emperor, the life at Court, and the reports of Ministers. It is painfully significant that every error in printing the latter is punished with death.

SOME persons say it is natural for them to lose flesh during summer. But losing flesh is losing ground. Can you afford to approach another winter in this weakened condition? Coughs and colds, weak throats and lungs, come quickest to those who are thin in flesh, to those easily chilled, to those who have poor circulation and feeble digestion.

of cod liver oil with hypophosphites does just as much good in summer as in winter. It makes flesh in August as well as April. You certainly need, as strong nerves in July as in January. And your weak throat and lungs should be healed and strengthened without delay.

WAR BULLETINS.

From Late Press Dispatches.

There is a prospect of peace looming up in the war situation.

M. Cambon, the French Ambassador to the United States, yesterdao presented to President McKinley the formal and direct request of Spain for a statement of the terms upon which peace would be granted. The communication from the Spanish government was a brief one. It frankly acknowledged that the fortune of war had gone against Spain. No suggestion was made or could be made at that stage as to the concessions which Spain would be willing to make and there was no request for an armistice.

The President informed M. Cambon that he would consult his Cabinet before answering, and that the Ambassador would be notified when to return to receive the reply of this government.

It will probably be several days before the President replies. It is believed that at present he favors these terms: Independence for Cuba, the cession of Porto Rico and the Ladrones and a coaling station in the Philippines.

The troops under Gen. Miles landed Monday at Port Guanica, on the southern coast of Porto Rico. The landing was effected almost without resistance. The point where the troops landed is a few miles west of Ponce and is connected with Ponce by a railroad. A military road runs from Ponce to San Juan, part of the route through a mountainous country.

The Third brigade of the First division received orders Tuesday morning to break camp at Chickamauga and prepare for departure for Newport News to take transports for Porto Rico.

Admiral Sampson's report on the naval battle at Santiago has been made public by the Navy Department.

THERE is considerable interest manifested in the candidate whom the Republicans will put out in this Appellate district to oppose Judge Hobson, the Democratic nominee. It is thought that a meeting of the district committee will soon be called by Chairman William Catron, of Pulaski, for the purpose of calling a convention. The counties and the votes to which each is entitled we give as follows:

Adair 8, Anderson 6, Barren 10, Bullitt 4, Casey 8, Clinton 5, Green 7, Hardin 9, Hart 10, Larue 5, Marion 8, Metcalfe 6, Nelson 7, Oldham 3, Pulaski 18, Russell 5, Shelbp 10, Spencer 3, Saylor 5. Washington 8, Wayne 7, Whitley 16. Total 168.

Judge Wallace Jones has formally announced his candidacy and it is believed that the Bradley element will back State Inspector C. W. Lester. Ex-Congressman John W. Lewis, who has been mentioned as a possible candidate and who has been strongly urged by his friends throughout the district to make the race, has not made any formal announcement, and we do not believe that Mr. Lewis is a candidate, as far as making an active canvass for the place is concerned. Mr. Lewis has received assurances of support of a nature that is very flattering to his chances for the nomination, but he has not yet made it known that he is a candidate seeking the nomination.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

The Republicans of Washington County Instruct for Blandford for Congress.

The Republicans of Washington county met at the Courthouse on Monday afternoon for the purpose of naming and instructing delegates in the district convention which is to meet at Elizabethtown, on August 3rd to nominate a Republican candidate for Congress. Mr. Andrew Offutt, of Marion county, who has recently shied his castor into the political arena and whose political aspirations have suddenly taken a high flight, caused a little contest in the convention by asking for the instructions of Washington county Hon. John W. Lewis introduced resolutions, which we publish below, instructing the delegates from this county to vote for Hon. Charles Blandford for the nomination. Maj. J. L. Wharton offered as an amendment that that the name of Andrew Offutt be substituted. After speeches from Messrs. Lewis, Wharton and Offutt, the vote was taken first on the amendment and then on the original resolution. The amendment was defeated, and the resolutions as introduced by Mr. Lewis, and which endorse Hon. Charles Blandford, were adopted by the convention. Hon. W. H. Morgan presided as chairman of the convention, and W. L. Keeling was elected secretary. The following is a copy of the resolutions in full:

RESOLVED: That the Republicans of Washington county, in mass convention assembled, approve of the call for a convention of the Republican of the Fourth Congressional District, to be held at Elizabethtown, Ky., on Wednesday, August 3, 1898, for the purpose of nominating a Republican candidate for Representative in Congress for this district.

RESOLVED: That we reaffirm our allegiance to the principles of the great and triumphant Republican party—triumphant throughout its existence in the cause of liberty, enlightenment, progress and humanity.

RESOLVED: That we feel the greatest pride in the incomparable achievements of the American army and navy, and the imperishable glory won by them in the present righteous war of our country with the tyrannical government of Spain. For our brave soldiers slain and wounded in battle, our tears flow unceasingly, whilst with their living comrades go our hopes and fears, our prayers, and our hearts warmest and truest affections. For the brave boys of our State and county, who have enlisted in the cause of their country in this holy war upon inhumanity and oppression, we send cheers and greetings, and assurances that we feel the highest pride in their manhood and patriotism, and our hopes that everyone of them having done his duty patriotically and manfully, may be spared to return to his family and home, to enjoy for many long years all the luxuries and blessings of the country he has served.

RESOLVED: That recognizing in ex-Speaker Charles Blandford, of Breckinridge county, a distinguished and patriotic soldier of the civil war, a statesman of ability, and a gentleman of integrity and truth, we endorse him as our choice for the Republican nomination for Congress, and instruct our delegates to cast the vote of Washington county as a unit for him as long as his name is before that convention.

RESOLVED: That we endorse the great policies of the Republican administation of President McKinley, so successfully and gloriously carried out.

RESOLVED: That Hon. W. H. Morgan, Maj. J L Wharton, Philip McConnell, Chas Schrugge, Thos. J. Miller, C R Filiatreau, W T Filiatreau, Peter Shehan, James H Hays, John W Lewis, Isaiah Prather, W M McMullan, W F Hall, Thos Key, George W Sparrow, John W Isom, J S Coyle, Jas H Waters, W L Keeling, John H Nally, John Idelen, Martin Redding, Chas Coyle, Dan Clements, and Ike Wharton be appointed delegates to represent Washington county in said convention.

W. H. MORGAN, Chairman.
W. L. KEELING, Secy.

Little Pimples Turn to Cancer.

Cancer often results from an impurity in the blood, inherited from generations back. Few people are entirely free from some taint in the blood, and it is impossible to tell when it will break out in the form of dreaded Cancer. What has appeared to be a mere pimple or scratch has developed into the most malignant Cancer.

"I had a severe Cancer which was at first only a few blotches, that I thought would soon pass away. I was treated by several able physicians, but in spite of their efforts the Cancer spread until my condition became alarming. After many months of treatment and growing steadily worse, I decided to try S. S. S. which was so strongly recommended. The first bottle produced an improvement. I continued the medicine, and in four months the last little scab dropped off. Ten years have elapsed, and not a sign of the disease has returned."
R. F. WILLIAMS,
Gillsburg, Miss.

It is dangerous to experiment with Cancer. The disease is beyond the skill of physicians. S. S. S. is the only cure, because it is the only remedy which goes deep enough to reach Cancer.

Deranged Functions

often result from the use of quinine, hot baths and hot drinks as remedies for a cold. They open the pores and make the system susceptible to more cold. Dr. Bell's Pine Tar Honey goes to the seat of the trouble and checks a cough at once or cures a cold in one night. It exhilarates the lungs.

Army and Navy Evolution.

The latest style of soldier is not as the latest engine of warship liable at any moment to become a self stopping piece of machinery, and on this particular score a tremendous superiority rests with the modern army over the modern fleet, which has been so revolutionized from top to bottom inside and outside as to be entirely unlike that of former times. Suddenly enabled to view the centurys closing scenes, the hero of Waterloo could have no difficulty in recognizing any existing army to be an army; but surely the hero of Trafalgar would need a new pair of eyes before he could see a fleet in the costly and rare naval monsters that now claim to rule the ocean though admittedly after "a German clock, still a repairing" sort of way. There always has been an element of uncertainty involved in ship-fighting entirely absent in soldier-fighting owing to the very different conditions under which each occurs. This element is enormously increased by the actual structure of naval vessels and the fact has been clearly demonstrated even in the slight practice that has up to this time been had with them. These vessels afford too wide a scope for chance to get in its work upon them, individually and collectively. Maritime warfare must be mainly of fleet against fleet, since it is not feasable for ships under the present changed condition to cope with land forces solidly embanked and supported. It is in pure fighting on the sea of fleet against fleet that chance-work can tell with terrible effect, because it cannot be held that in a sea fight or anywhere else "chances are equal," equality of chances being impossible, inequality of chances being impossible, inequality being the governing law in the nature of things. Chance may so disarrange the many and wonderful intricacies of the vessels in a contending fleet as to annul it together with the superiority of skill possessed by its personnel over that of its opponent the utmost ability of of the commander on the one side being thus able to yield to the vastly inferior capacity and management of his opponent. Through excessive complexity of make up the current ships are certainly unequal to all the straining requirements of battle which call for precisely and surely working machines from which the play of chance be as far as possible eliminated and guarded against. Invention has wrought an immense change in the armament of navies and armies, especially of navies; but the supreme controller over both remains now as of yore, identical—the ever constant and unchangeable power of mind.—Leslie's Monthly.

Persons troubled with diarrhoea will be interested in the experience of Mr. W. M. Bush, clerk of Hotel Dorrance, Providence R. I. He says: 'For several years I have been almost a constant sufferer from diarrhoea the frequent attacks completely prostrating me and rendering unfit for my duties at this hotel. About two years ago a travelling salesman kindly gave me a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Much to my surprise and delight its effects were immediate. Whenever I felt symptoms of the disease I would fortify myself with a few doses of this valuable remedy. The result has been very satisfactory and almost complete relief from the affliction. REV. W. M. STALLINGS has at last received a letter from his brother J. S. Stallings, who, with the Twelfth Regiment of regular under General Chappee, was in the terrible fight at El Caney on July 1st. Young Stallings writes that he came out of the fight without a scratch and is still in good health, having escaped the fever which is now raging among the troops encamped at Santiago. He says that he was in the thickest of the fight and was under heavy fire for ten hours. Young Stallings' relatives here are very much relieved by the news of his safety.

THE recent examinations of applicants for teacher's certificates which have been held here resulted as follows: In the examination for white teachers, out of ten applicants four were given first-class, six second-class and one third-class certificates. Hagan composed the board of examiners.

News From the Boys.

Mr. Will Leachman received a letter yesterday from Reginald Clements, one of the Springfield boys with the First Regiment. Reginald is now a corporal in Company K, and writes interestidgly about camp life. He says that the boys are all happy at the prospect of going to Porto Rico, that they are tired of camp life and want to do some fighting. He says that the captain of their company has gone home sick, and that Will Reed, who is First Lieutenant, will probably be elected captain, as he is very popular with the men of the company. Ed McElroy, he says, is second Sargeant of the company. The boys from Washington county, he says, are all well and have become hardened to camp life.

A Success.

The Old Maid's Convention has met and has adjourned after having accomplished its object—that of affording an evening of hearty fun for a good sized audience that assembled at the Opera House on Tuesday evening. The twenty-five or thirty young ladies who took part in the performance deserve praise for the admirable way in which they made the best of every situation, each one by her individual acting contributing toward the pleasing effect of the performance as a whole. The quaint old costumes and make-up of the old maids were features and caused a great deal of amusement. The "experiences" given by the members of the convention were good, and the local hits kept the audience in an uproar of laughter. The rejuvenating machine which possessed the power to make old maids young and beautiful, was introduced with great success, doing all that its inventor claimed for it. During the intermissions the audience was entertained by songs from Miss Mary Bevil and Mrs. Mamie Hurt, of Lebanon. Miss Bevil possesses a voice of great sweetness, which she uses to good effect. Mrs. Hurt also has a well trained voice, and her songs were well received.

Baseball.

The baseball team from Bardstown came up on last Friday afternoon and administered an overwhelming defeat to the Springfield club in the presence of a good crowd of people. The score at the end of the last inning stood Bardstown 14; Springfield 2. The Bardstown boys played good ball throughout the game, although they failed to hit Colvin hard at any time. The fielding game they put up however, was good, the work of the infield being of the professional order. Bobbie Blinco pitched a good game, our boys failing to solve his delivery to any extent. The fielding of some of the home boys was of the very yellow order, and was responsible for the majority of the runs made by the visitors. THE Nelson Record in speaking of the game says: "The Springfield team will return the game here next week. The Bardstown boys are always treated royally by the people of Springfield and the club of the latter place will receive like treatment here. Every player of the Bardstown team acquitted himself with credit in the game Friday and the club is now wanting more games."

The club from Texas came down Saturday and played a picked nine composed of a part of the regular Springfield team and some younger players. The game resulted in a victory for the Texas club by a score of 16 to 10. The Texas boys were much elated over their success.

Death, 'Tis Sad.

Died, Friday, July 15, 1897, at her home near Springfield, Ky., Mary Sansberry, daughter of Polen and Mattie Sansberry. But a few simple words, yet what a world of sadness in their meaning. As a young girl she was much loved for her cheerful and any loving heart; her sweet and gentle disposition and unselfish nature won all. The writer of this memoir holds her in grateful remembrance for a kind deed performed in a time of trouble. Few, indeed, are her friends who cannot remember some kindness at her hands, and though we will sadly miss her, yet we know that God in His wisdom does all things for the best. She left to her family an example of Christian fortitude in saying 'Thy will be done, not mine, oh Lord!" May she rest in peace.

A dear, good friend.

A Bad Thing to Go Against.

Mr. Geo. C. Keller, Jr., has left at this office a Krag-Jorgeson cartridge, given him by Sergeant Kratger, of the regular army, stationed at Fort Wadsworth, N. Y. The cartridge is two and a half inches long and is loaded with smokeless powder and guncotton. The bullet, which is the size of a lead pencil, is of lead and is covered with a steel jacket, which prevents it from spreading. It will go through 36 inches of solid wood at 500 yards and will kill a man two and a half miles, and an ordinary tree at a reasonable distance is no protection from this deadly missive. If the point of the steel jacket is filed off before firing, Mr. Keller tells us that the ball will tear a hole through a man large enough to run your fist in. One of these bullets struck an American in the wrist at Santiago, ranged up the arm, passed through the shoulder and jaws into the other shoulder, then passed down the back and was cut out at the knee.—Harrodsburg Democrat.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

FEEDING OUR BOYS!

UNCLE SAM PROVIDES A VERY GOOD TABLE FOR THEM.

Serious Work of Feeding an Army—The Problem of Fresh Bread—How the Soldiers Health is Guarded—The Company Cook.

Uncle Sam's soldiers are probably the best fed and cared for troops in the world. The facilities for securing provisions, even on forced marches, are such that the commissary department has little trouble in supplying the troops with a varied and palatable bill of fare.

The greatest tests in the matter of food supplies during the past two decades have been to secure and transport provisions to the little bands of cavalry and infantry engaged in keeping down Indian depredations in the west. It was during these expeditions that the equipment of the commissary department has been perfected, until to-day each company carries in a small space all the necessaries of a kitchen and culinary department. This outfit is one which never fails to interest women visitors to encampments of United States troops, and to win from the housewife great praise for its simplicity and effectiveness.

Each company has its cook, usually a fat and jolly member of the service, whose headquarters are frequented during all parts of the day by convivial members of the company. The usual habit of cooks to grow fat and good natured seems to be a rule of those who serve in the army, as well as those who are in civil life. The cook is a regularly enlisted member of the army, told off for his duties because of his fitness for the part. He is allowed two assistants, these being appointed by the commander of the company for a week's service in the cook's department, and being under his charge. While they assist in preparing and serving the food, the cook does the major part of the work, and it is his taste and skill which goes to make the victuals served a factor in the health and contentment of the corps.

The cook has one small tent in which are stored the extra provisions and utensils needed. A large fly, with poles and guy ropes, serves to shelter the cooking apparatus and to form the company's kitchen. Under it the stove is placed. The latter is an oblong metal affair, made on purpose for the army, and having griddle holes for the pots and pans. A ditch is scraped in the earth, and on it the stove is placed, leaving room underneath for the fire of glowing weed embers. The cook is an artist at making a fire in this trench and in keeping it at an even heat. Various folding chairs, tables improvised of camp chests and other things, serve to make the necessary apparatus for use in the kitchen. A dozen big kettles, boilers and pans are the utensils needed.

Dinner, at noon, is the principal meal of the day in camp life, and for an hour before the kitchen presents a busy scene. One assistant, with sleeves rolled up above the elbows, sits on a chest peeling potatoes, a bushel or more being necessary for the meal. Near him the other assistant bends over a great quarter of beef, carving out a supply for the meal. The cook watches his men while he attends the stove and begins preparations for the coming repast. A huge boiler on one side of the stove holds four gallons of fragrant coffee, another boiler is filled with water to receive the potatoes, while in a bright kettle on another part of the stove the cook drops vegetables, rice and other wholesome parts of soup and waits for the assistant to finish carving the meat that it may be added.

Soon the dinner is well under way, and the cook and his assistants are busy men. In addition to the hot parts of the meal, there are to be taken from the chests and served great loaves of bread or hard tack. The bread problem is a serious one on a march, or in camp, and away from the cities, and while the cook often has to prepare the corn bread or other cereal himself, it is brought into camp already prepared whenever possible. A company of a hundred men or more will eat a great quantity of the staff of life in a week, and hundreds of loaves are necessary.

There are other parts of the soldier's meal to be fixed, if the company is near civilization and provisions are plentiful. Baked beans often appear on the bill of fare, dried fruit, rice, hominy and other easily carried eatables, and to prepare all these on the one small stove and with only two assistants is an art that only an army cook understands.

When the meal is ready and the bugles blow to mess, the soldiers arrange themselves in an orderly manner, and the cook and his assistants start out. First the soup is ladeled out, then the more solid components of the meal, then the coffee and then the sweets, until all are supplied.

To such an extent does cleanliness enter into the preparation of the soldiers' meal that the greatest precautions are taken to exclude dirt. Carefully the pots and pans are scrubbed brightly, the big knives and utensils are polished and the refuse of the cook tents is carried far off and dumped to prevent the contagion that might arise from decaying slops. The officers are vigilant in keeping watch on the cook and his assistants, as the health of the camp may depend on their careful cleanliness.

Each company has its cook and mess, except where great armies are encamped; then a number of cook departments are thrown together to work in unison. Uncle Sam has all his cooking utensils made to order, and chests are used to pack everything in when on the march.

When Ague Shakes You

you can shake the Ague by using AYER'S AGUE CURE. It is the one certain and infallible cure for that depleting disease. It has been tried in many countries and under various conditions, and has never been known to fail. An old veteran writes:—

"You may be interested to know my experience many years ago with Ayer's Ague Cure. The year before the war I was in Kansas. Some twenty of us were engaged in farming, and suddenly all were taken with fever and ague. We tried almost everything without getting any help, till at last I sent to the city and procured a bottle of Ayer's Ague Cure. I recovered at once. The others followed my example, and they, too, recovered. Every one in camp took the remedy and was cured by it. I went all through the war, have lived in thirteen different states of the Union, and have never had the ague since."

Several farmers will buy hogsheads to store their wheat in this summer. Such persons should be very careful in adopting this plan, as wheat put in any kind of a barrel is almost sure to spoil by becoming musty. While the wheat put in hogsheads may seem to be good on top yet down toward the middle and bottom it will be spoiled. Better buy sacks or put your wheat in a pile on the floor. —Flemingsburg Gazette.

A Western Kentucky weather prophet says if the katydid's first appearance has any influence on weather conditions, we will have frost by the 25th of next September, that insect's lullaby having been first heard on the 25th, and it is said that frost occurs 90 days thereafter. He reports another forecast of the weather, which is thought to be reliable than that of the katydid, the hornet. If they nest low, it foretells a hard winter, if high, a mild winter. These two swarms he found nesting on the ground in a field where he was cutting clover. Another sign, the clustering of wild grapes also indicates a hard winter.—Paris Reporter.

Sheridan at the Milliner's.

Gen. Sheridan as he became older conquered his shyness. At the time of the Commune he was in Paris with his aide-de-camp. There was also stopping at the same hotel a charming American woman with whom he was slightly acquainted. The prisoners had been liberated and were rushing madly through the streets. The order had also been given that all windows and shutters must be kept closed. Shut up in her dark room and hearing the noisy rabble below, the woman became greatly alarmed.

"There is but one thing for me to do," she cried, "to insure safety. I will put myself under the care of the American General."

She therefore sent her card to Sheridan, who at once called and offered his services. He also advised that she should join his party in the morning and get away to London. Still she appeared distressed. Finally she cried: "It is my bonnets at Virot's. They were to have been down to-day. How can I go and leave them?"

The General grasped the situation, and offered his arm to escort her to the milliner's. Happily it was not far off. Ever afterward he delighted to tell of his pleasure at seeing such an array of dainty headgear. He had never been at a milliner's before.

Spain's Riches.

If Spain really wants to keep up the fight and can get funds in no other way, she might turn to her cathedrals. When she was at the zenith of her power the cathedrals became the receptacles of vast wealth, and for the most part that wealth remains to-day. There are many chapels that to the depth of two inches are worth their weight in gold. Not only are the mosaics that cover the walls of very high value, but the shrines are loaded with rare ornaments, and in many cases with precious stones of great size and worth. A chapel in the great Cathedral of Sevilla has a Virgin lighted by a huge emerald fixed in the roof above the head, and the garments of the Virgin and saints have jewels sewed on them. Here, then, are untold riches, but a country would be far gone, indeed, to make use of so sacred relics for carrying on an unholy war. At present they are rigorously guarded.

When the Sultan Goes to Pray.

When the Sultan of Turkey attends the Friday midday prayer at the mosque, in Constantinople, the garrison of 30,000 men are stationed along the route so that he shall be safely guarded from the moment he leaves his palace until he is on his carpet in the sacred edifice. He often rides in a closed carriage, surrounded by a body guard. He makes these weekly journeys in fear of his life, and he insists upon every precaution being taken. Thousands of people gather to see the Ruler of the Faithful, but the best way to see him is to get the ear of the Chamberlain or Grand Vizier, who, by judicious bribery, may be prevailed upon to admit you to the strangers' box of the mosque, where priests and politicians, soldiers, sailors and civilians jostle one another in their desire to obtain a glimpse of Abd-ul-Hamid at prayer.

Iceland's Bottle Post.

The "bottle post" is an old institution on the south coast of Iceland. Letters are put into corked bottles which are wafted by the winds to the opposite coast. They also contain a cigar or other trifle to induce the finder to deliver the letters as addressed.

"Our new pastor, the Rev. Mr. Allwell, preaches a great deal about heaven. You remember the good old Dr. Scarus, his predecessor, was always preaching about the other place."

"Yes; he was blazing the way for Brother Allwell.—Chicago Tribune.

Sympathetic Husbands.

The sympathetic tenderness of a loving husband is everything to an expectant mother, especially during her first ordeal. George Layton, Esq., a prominent druggist of Dayton, O., gives the following case:

A customer of mine, whose wife has used four bottles of "Mother's Friend" before confinement, says, after seeing the effects of the remedy, that if she had to go through the ordeal again, and there were but four bottles on the market, and the cost was $100 per bottle, she would have them.

"Mother's Friend" is a scientifically compounded liniment which affords certain relief in the various ailments preceding childbirth, and assures proper elasticity to the cords and muscles involved in the final ordeal.

"Mother's Friend" is sold by druggists, or expressed on receipt of one dollar.

Height of Soldiers.

The Yankee is the tallest of civilized men. In Europe the Scandinavian is the only one that approaches him in average height of the body. Even the Englishman is half an inch shorter and the German a trifle more than an inch. The average American volunteer stands 5 feet 7½ inches in his stocking feet, whereas the Spanish soldiers averages nearly two inches shorter. The American is ten pounds heavier than his antagonist and his chest expansion is markedly greater. During the civil war the biggest men came from Kentucky, averaging a trifle over 5 feet 8½ inches. Close behind was Kansas, with Minnesota, Missouri, California and Nevada following in the order given. The men from all these states averaged 5 feet 8 inches. Maine, Illinois and Michigan fell two-tenths of an inch below that mark, and next come Ohio and Pennsylvania. Massachusetts and Connecticut were at the foot of the list, the volunteers from the latter state averaging only 5 feet 6½ inches.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

BEST SARSAPARILLA.

"Best" is an easy boast. But there's no best without a test. You expect something extra of best; something extra in bread from best flour; something extra in wear from best cloth; something extra in cures from best medicines. It's that something extra in Ayer's Sarsaparilla that makes Ayer's the best. That something extra is quality. Remember it's quality that cures, not quantity. Geo. Smith of the People's Drug Store, Seymour, Conn., says: "I have sold your goods for twenty-five years and when a customer asks me for

The Best Preparation for the Blood

I say: 'If you will take my opinion, use Ayer's Sarsaparilla; I will guarantee that you will receive more benefit by using one or two bottles of Ayer's than you would by using half a dozen bottles of some other kind.' When they take it, I never hear any complaint."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla cures all diseases that have their origin in impure blood: sores, ulcers, boils, eruptions, pimples, eczema, tetter, scrofula, etc. It cures cheaply, it cures quickly, and it cures to stay. That's why it's best.

"After twenty years' experience as a druggist, I consider Ayer's Sarsaparilla superior to any similar preparation on the market, and I give it the preference over all others."
A. C. WOODWARD, Worcester, Mass.

"In our estimation, as regards Sarsaparilla, Ayer's is the standard. We have never heard it spoken of in other than the very highest terms."
W. E. TERRILL & CO., Pharmacists, 9 State Street, Montpelier, Vt.

"I consider Ayer's Sarsaparilla the best blood purifier on the market."
Dr. GRISE & CO., West Gardner, Mass.

"During fifteen years of experience with Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I have yet to learn of a single case wherein it failed to cure if used according to directions."
F. O. COLLINS, Druggist, Paris, Mo.

"I believe Ayer's Sarsaparilla contains more medicinal value than any other similar compound."
JAMES DOANE, Dispensing Chemist, Kingsville, Ont.
